ADDRESS TO THE PUBLIC.

A New Edition of Shakspeare, and an Edition of so singular a Form as the present, in which all his Plays are comprehended in One Volume, will perhaps appear surprising to many Readers; but, upon a little Reflection, their Surprise will, the Editor doubts not, be converted into Approbation.

Much as Shakspeare has been read of late Years, and largely as the Admiration and Study of him have been extended, there are still a numerous Class of Men to whom he is very imperfectly known. Many of the middling and lower Ranks of the Inhabitants of this Country are either not acquainted with him at all, excepting by Name, or have only seen a few of his Plays, which have accidentally fallen in their Way. It is to supply the Wants of these Persons that the present Edition is principally undertaken; and it cannot fail of becoming to them a perpetual Source of Entertainment and Instruction.

But the Instruction that may be drawn from Shakspeare is equal to the Entertainment which his Writings afford. He is the greatest Master of Human Nature, and of Human Life, that perhaps ever existed; so that we cannot peruse his Works without having our Understandings considerably enlarged. To promote, therefore, the Knowledge of him is to contribute to general Improvement.

Nor is the Utility of the present Publication confined to Persons of the Rank already described; it will be found serviceable even to those whose Situation in Life hath enabled them to purchase all the expensive Editions of our great Dramatist. The Book now offered to the Public may commodiously be taken into a Coach or a Post-chaise, chaife, for Amusement, in a Journey. It is a Compendium, not an Abridgment, of the noblest of our Poets, and a Library in a single Volume.

The Editor hath endeavoured to give all the Perfection to this Work which the Nature of it will admit. The Account of his Life, which is taken from Rowe, and his Last Will, in reality comprehend almost every Thing that is known with regard to the personal History of Shakspeare.

The Notes which are subjoined are such as were necessary for the Purpose of illustrating and explaining obsolete Words, unusual Phrases, old Customs, and obscure or distant Allusions. In short, it has been the Editor's Aim to omit nothing which may serve to render Shakspeare intelligible to every Capacity, and to every Class of Readers.

Gentlemen in the Country finding a Difficulty in procuring the above valuable Work, by directing a Line to Mr. Stockdale, opposite Burlington-house, Piccadilly, (appointing the Payment thereof in London) shall have it immediately forwarded (Carriage paid) to any Part of Great Britain.
